What is Assisted Living?

Assisted Living residences provide housing and a range of support services for seniors and persons with disabilities who have difficulty living independently and require assistance with the challenge of day-to-day activities. Typically, individuals or couples interested in Assisted Living will already be receiving home care services provided by either the Regional Health Authority (RHA) or by family members.

It is recommended that those interested in Assisted Living contact their local RHA Home Care office to discuss if assisted living will provide enough care for their current needs.

What is Supportive Living?

Supportive Care is an additional level of care that may be provided by Boyne Care should sufficient demand be determined. Individuals requiring Supportive Care services generally cannot live safely or independently at home even with home care services. Residents in Supportive Care receive additional care and attention as a Home Care Attendant is available to provide 24/7 assistance.

An important distinction between Assisted Living and Supportive Care application process is that an individual must be paneled by the Regional Health Authority prior to being considered for admission to the Supportive Care residence. Couples are encouraged to apply together even if one spouse does not require Supportive Care services and each application is evaluated on a case-by-case basis.
